Chapter 1 by Iris26

Dakota Goldfrey is a young queen who has married into a dysfunctional royal family. Though her husband, the king, is even-tempered and kind-hearted, there are constant feuds between the king's siblings who rule the neighboring kingdoms. During a lavish banquet, a fierce swordfight breaks out between rival members of the noble family and the good king is slain in the process of trying to keep the peace. Sadness sweeps over the kingdom and other rulers from far and wide come to the funeral to pay their condolences to the bereaved queen.

Amaryllis, a beautiful elf who is next in line to their throne, dutifully makes the journey on behalf of their ailing father though they want nothing to do with kingship or the responsibilities that the crown entails. When Amaryllis meets Dakota they discover that they are kindred spirits, Dakota never wanted to be royalty either. The unlikely pair decide to run away together in the dead of night, consequences be damned.

Chapter 2 by SaintSayaka

Dakota never thought that she would partake in the flesh of Elf. Though the kingdom's rules were large and varied, there was a common theme amongst their lawbooks - no interspecies relations. She never thought that she would be running away with said Elf to somewhere where they could live out their days in peace either, but there was always a first time for everything.

She tasted...different. Like a sticky bun, dotted with raisins and a sprinkle of salt from the rough terrain. Clearly, the Elf was just as surprised at the taste of Dakota's body - she was sure that she was quite unlike the male Elves of Amaryllis' brood.

But back in the kingdom, the king was dead. The kingdom was left vulnerable to the evil forces that had sought to take over the throne. The poor weren't safe anymore, and other kingdoms wanted the land.

Dakota and Amaryllis new nothing of this. They did not stop to think of the consequences of a sudden anarchy. The couple was too busy "exploring" each other to care.

Instead, another individual heard the kingdom's plea. The king had another son, a dwarf by the name of Lesvig, who made his way to the broken kingdom to try and restore peace.
